We hear you

Any gripes, kudos, or ideas? Call 378-9136 to sound off.

Last week your sports editor said he couldn't reach the Campbell High School soccer coach who teaches at Del Mar High School. He DOES NOT teach at Del Mar. I know because I teach there. I think it might be Leigh High School.

A CORRECTION

Editor's note: You are ...t. We stand corrected.

...hat happened to the ...s column this week? I ... forward to it, not just for the new problems but to find out if my solution to the last problem was right.

A KNIGHT

Editor's note: According to the Marquee editor several important columns had to be left out last week because of a lack of space. You'll find the chess column in today's Sun Magazine section.

I just read the letter from "Irate Parent" and my response is . . . take a look at Campbell Junior High School. The school is a total disaster; overcrowded classes, "tenured teachers" who have no interest in teaching, rude employees, vandalism, dissention among teaching staff from Campbell and the "new comers." But worse of all, very poor quality education! And who cares? I know that I care but can't change the system. So the only alternative I see is to send my children to a private school, which I will do in September. I think that they will benefit not only from a better quality education but will also benefit from being treated as human beings, not herded like cattle.

GIVING UP

Editor's note: Two school administrators at Campbell junior high prepared the following answer to Giving Up.

"There are many general and unfounded criticisms in the letter. We do not agree! Perhaps the best response is an open invitation to the writer or other interested community members to visit our school. Visit classes (average size 26.23 students), talk to teachers about "dissention," curriculum plans, our Basic Skills Program and any other area of concern. Our staff is highly competent and student oriented. They are professionals! An interesting contrast to this letter is the article in this issue about Campbell junior high's Climate Day program. The emphasis is on "caring" and individual student worth. Again we invite you to our school. We welcome parent and community participation. We continually review curriculum and procedures to improve our program. Please join us in these efforts."

Cement trains through town / A 'wail' of an idea

By PAT SAFFORD

THE LONELY TRAIN whistle, heard once or twice a day in Campbell, could become a more familiar sound if a proposal by a group from Cupertino is successful.

The Special Committee on Kaiser, which has been meeting since the week of January 9, wants the Kaiser Cement and Gypsum Corporation (Permanente plant) to switch from truck to rail transportation.

Those 40 to 80-car trains would be coming through Campbell and Los Gatos on the spur line which connects the plant to the north San Jose area.

Local observors don't expect that plan to get far, particularily with strong opposition from Kaiser and Southern Pacific.

The group plans to appear before county supervisors Feb. 27 to request funds for an independent study by an economic consultant. Focus of that study would be actual costs to Kaiser.

THE IDEA BEHIND THE plan is to cut down on truck traffic and noise in the west county area.

Originally the group suggested Kaiser use trains instead of trucks to transport cement products which make up about 40 percent of the total production at the Cupertino facility.

At a meeting of the committee last Wednesday the group decided to go ahead with a proposal for an "almost all rail" system which would include both cement and gravel products.

Actual impact of the latest plan hasn't been determined yet but Bob Sturdovan, principal planner for the county, gave an estimate on the original (40 percent) proposal.

Rail traffic would increase to a maximum of six additional trains a day, Sturdovan said, some carrying 40 to 60 cars.

Under the almost total rail plan, he said, an estimated 60 to 80 cars would be pulled by the two engines per trainload.

KAISER AND SP representatives at the meetings haven't been supportive of the rail proposal, according to Sturdovan, who serves as committee staff. The major reason is financial.

According to a Kaiser spokesman, the more conservative rail plan would cost the company $8 million to construct a satellite terminal (transfer station) in the Dixon Landing area and an additional $5 million a year in distribution costs.

"That would be the cost to move 900,000 tons of cement a year by rail," the spokesman commented.

Sturdovan isn't optimistic about the proposal getting an endorsement from supervisors.

"I THINK IT'S AN exercise in futility," the planner said last week. "Even if they wanted, and I have no reason to believe they do, the

City eyes change Speed zoning problem

By MIKE COLPITTS

FOR THE PAST THREE months the Campbell Police Department has cut down on writing citations using radar on several city streets.

The quandry on whether to cite motorists or not started about six months ago when a man took his speeding ticket to court and won the battle.

The driver received a ticket for speeding in a 25 MPH residential zone. Traffic Commissioner John Triplett threw the ticket out of court when Campbell, he said, "was unable to show justification for the area being zoned a minimum 25 MPH area."

"The survey wasn't adequate," said Triplett in the first of two interviews with the Campbell PRESS, "and the findings weren't resolved soon enough. So, I threw the ticket out."

A section of the vehicle code, 627, requires cities to update their speed surveys a minimum of once every five years. The law was instituted in 1972 mainly to prohibit speed traps. But the City of Campbell has kept up with the law.

"We do at least eight to 10 hours of speed study work each month," says City Traffic Engineer Keith Manley, who keeps the records in check.

However, Triplett has his own idea of what the law should be as a representative of the court. The Commissioner threw the ticket out because he feels Budd Avenue shouldn't have a 25 MPH limit. He feels it should be higher.

THE LAW REQUIRES cities to determine the speed limits on their streets. This is done by three basic, time-consuming, but fundamental procedures. The traffic engineer determines how fast the traffic is moving by testing cars driving down each street. The average is determined by the speed 85 per cent of the traffic is moving at.

Secondly, the accident rate is taken into consideration, and finally, conditions which are not readily apparent are also taken into account. These include the mixture of residential and commercial areas, as well as stop signs, traffic signals, and any other obstacles near or in the roadway.

Only if the city complies with these steps, and sets the speed limit to the nearest speed of the 85-percentile can radar citations be given, unless a difference is determined by the traffic engineer. The difference must be for one or more of the other reasons, and must be justified when tested in court.

SPEED LIMIT CHANGES have been made in Campbell. However, the Budd Avenue case was the first one to go to court. Following the case, Commissioner Triplett met with Campbell's Traffic Engineer to work out the difficulties.

Manley worked up a new speed zone survey for all of the major streets in the city, and the initial step to resolve the problems was made. The City Council will have to pass Manley's report if the police department is to enforce the streets with radar.

If not, there are two other ways the Campbell Police Department will handle speeders.

Motorists driving as Manley says "at unreasonable speeds" will be cited under the basic speed law, which is for conditions not safe for the speed, or by a patrolman, who follows the car and checks the speed.

Ironically, this means in Campbell the speed limits need to be raised on several streets to cite motorists with radar. Triplett doesn't know how many streets are facing this situation in Campbell, and neither does Manley since all haven't gone to court.

"There might be a street or two or three or even several more where the city needs to raise the limits to cite legally," said Triplett. "But then it becomes political."

"THEY (THE CITY) CLAIM they've taken all the readings, and the problem we discussed six months ago,

Permit issued for high rise

Building permits for January totaled less than $500,000, the Campbell Building Department reported last week. But February will more than make up for it.

During the first two weeks of this month almost $9 million in permits had been processed.

The largest single development is the $4.6 million Wesley Manor high-rise building to be constructed on Winchester near Hamilton ave. by the Methodist Retirement Foundation.

Second largest permit this month was the $2.3 million 63-unit apartment planned for Bascom avenue.

During January the largest single development was $125,000 in restaurant remodeling work for International King's Table, 1730 S. Bascom ave.

A $95,000 industrial building is in the works for 1334 Dell ave. and Concrete Curl, Inc. valued their skateboard park at 2155 S. Bascom ave. at $92,761.

Last year in January building permits totaled $902,114, including 12 single family homes valued at $445,042.

So far this year no permits have been issued for new homes.

A blossom banner year

Local street trees had that "Spring is here" look about them last week but cold temperatures were a reminder it is still winter. Actually, there are 25 days until Spring (March 20) and over two months until daylight savings time brings those long evenings again. Rainfall as of Tuesday morning totaled 18.40 inches, well ahead of the normal to date of 10.27 inches.

McBain street change eyed

City councilmen received a petition last week from residents of McBain ave. seeking to have their street converted to one way westbound between Midway and Bascom ave.

Reason for the request is the traffic and parking problems generated by a nearby record and tape retail outlet.

Officials referred the request to the department of public works and asked to have a staff report at the March 27 meeting.

Reservoirs inching up

Santa Clara Valley reservoirs are nearing the 100,000 mark, thanks to continued wet weather.

Valley reservoirs, which have a capacity of just under 173,000 acre feet of water, now have over 96,000 acre feet of water storage.

While some of these reservoirs have a long ways to go before being filled, others are closer to the brim and some water may be allowed to escape so later flooding can be avoided.

In fact state officials believe most of Northern California's major storage reservoirs will be full by summer if current rainfall continues. This is a far cry from empty or puddle-sized storage basins caused by the prolonged drought.

Other bright signs of a more plentiful water year are above-normal snow levels which later become the runoff that fills reservoirs and fulfill promises of normal water deliveries by state officials.

Ticket thrown out of court

Keep your eye on those speed limit signs - - - They could be changing to the best of my recollection, was the data they have. They were having trouble putting it together I assume," said Triplett, the commissioner who is considered an enigma by several employees of the cities he works with.

But engineer Manley was surprised at Triplett's findings.

"What the commissioner has done is say he doesn't agree with my judgment," he noted. "From the time we met six months or so ago, the interpretation may have been confused."

But Manley echoed the sentiments of all involved. "It has to be purely an engineering process because when it becomes political it can't and won't be solved."

The main problem with radar at this juncture is that the courts, engineers and law enforcement officers all have their own interpretations of what a speed limit should be.

IN RECENT months the Campbell Public Works Department has been updating traffic speed surveys in an attempt to comply with recommendations of Traffic Commissioner John Triplett. Ted Wilson, traffic engineering technician, shown above was one of those conducting surveys. At stake in the project is the city's ability to issue speeding tickets that stick on several major streets. Six months ago Triplett threw out a speeding citation. So far there hasn't been a major problem with ticketed drivers successfully fighting citations. Few motorists cited in Campbell come to court to fight the ticket, Trickett says.
(Photography by Amy Huntoon)

ONE CAMPBELL POLICE officer spelled out what he believes to be the "precise ball of wax." The officer, who refused to be identified, said, "I don't like to write radar citations because I'm not sure whether they're going to stand up or not."

But Police Chief Don Burr says the department's position has been the same both pre and post Triplett.

"I don't think we've had a real problem with [illegible] streets," Burr said. "The only way to enforce with radar is to be on some streets some of the time. Officers work one street for a while and slow down the traffic, and then the people are educated for awhile. The public is slowed down. We have certain streets we work like this all of the time."

But Burr did concede the speeds on some streets, in his opinion, need to be raised.

"Engineering needs to raise the rates by their surveys. But I'd say Campbell avenue downtown isn't safe for almost 40," the Chief said. But part of Campbell avenue, east of Dillon avenue, has been rated at 36 MPH.

The limit imposed must be rounded to the nearest five-mile-per-hour digit unless other cause can be shown.

TRAFFIC IS ONE of the major concerns of local residents, if the volume of calls to officials is any indication. Complaints range from pedestrians upset over what they feel is the excessive speed of cars to motorists who feel the posted speed is too slow.

In Campbell's case, revamping the speed zoning will please some, but certainly not all, citizens.

"The interesting part of the problem," Commissioner Triplett explained, "is that when the speed limit is higher than the city wants, the residents and merchants will complain."

Change in speed zoning laws is a possibility

The speed surveys the City of Campbell is making in an attempt to clean up the ticketing problems, may be changed before the ink dries on many radar tickets anyway.

At the most recent meeting of the California Traffic Control Devices Committee, a state wide organization, there was talk of possible action to change the vehicle code requirements for speed surveys.

The possibility of enforcing radar once again without a survey was brought up. It was also noted that the courts are objecting to cities conducting surveys on one street and applying the results to other similar street.

The committee investigating the matter includes Santa Clara County Traffic Commissioner John Triplett.

New legislation seems doubtful at this time but there could be some direct changes coming out of the discussions.

Traffic engineers, law enforcement officers, and the courts have determined their own speed limits for respective streets.

Section 627 of the vehicle code requires cities to up-date their speed surveys a minimum of once every five years. Campbell has done so.

The law was instituted in 1972 by the state legislature. Sacramento's police department was using radar at that time to cite motorists for driving in excess of respective speed limits on the Capitol city streets.

Legislators were so angered at the department's attempt to take advantage of its use of radar, the lawmakers enacted the speed zone survey law.

Some legislators were even cited for doing 26 or 27 in a 25 MPH zone, which caused them to expediate the bureaucratic process.

Surprise: houses have gotten cheaper

Some fair — if not good — news has come to light with word central Santa Clara Valley houses are slightly cheaper of late.

The average re-sale price of a San Jose area home has gone down $67 between January and December but still stands at a little over $71,000, according to figures from the San Jose Board of Realtors.

The realtors' group says the housing market is beginning to correct itself from spiraling valuation increases recorded during 1977, sometimes almost $7,500 or five percent a month.

Real estate in the Santa Clara Valley is expected to continue one per [illegible] monthly appreciation this year. Realtors now say there is a slight increase in the number of multiple listings for home sales.

Statistics show only about a quarter of the recent home sellers actually got the price they first asked. Realtors feel supply of homes will more closely equal demand this year.

Tough stance on criminals in McAlister proposal

Capitol News Service

The Criminal Justice Committee is receiving a flurry of new bills designed to strike a tougher line against habitual criminals, including one bill which completely renovates California's criminal justice system.

Violent and dangerous criminal offenders will receive longer sentences under provisions of Democratic Assemblyman Alister McAlister's AB 2475, which also introduces comprehensive reform throughout the state's law enforcement system.

The Assemblyman said he had spent over 200 hours working with law enforcement officials to craft the reform package and characterized it as "the best possible consensus of law enforcement opinions . . . to effectively confront the menace of repeat violent and other serious offenders."

McAlister's bill would increase the median and maximum jail sentences for serious felonies by 75 to 100 percent and require a 12 year jail term for first degree murder before the offender would be eligible for parole.

Decision reversed

Wrestling issue settled by state CIF director

A RULING BY a state athletic official brought about a dramatic turn around in the Brenda Nunes case last week.

According to Principal Bud Baldwin of Campbell High School, the 16-year-old junior will be allowed to practice, or take part in exhibition games, with the San Jose state university wrestling team. She'll also be eligible to try out for other sports at the local school.

University officials are now taking a look at the question of insurance liability before deciding about extending another invitation to the local girl.

ORIGINALLY, BALDWIN said, both Haskell Bowen, commissioner of the West Valley Athletic League and Larry Rice, of the Central Coast Section, said league rules prohibited Brenda from any participation with the college team.

An added problem was the chance that, since the 105-pound athlete had attended one practice session, she might be ineligible for future competitive sports at Campbell high.

Last Wednesday Chuck Smith, Brenda's attorney, contacted Baldwin to ask for a "definitive statement" of the local ruling.

"If that ruling was adverse," the principal said, "he indicated he would start the appeals process."

Both Rice and Bowen were out of the office when Baldwin tried to contact them that day so he put in a call to Bill Russell, state director of the California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) instead.

RUSSELL SAID the league rules cited in Brenda's case "did not apply" and were intended for high school students trying out for professional baseball teams.

Baldwin put in a call to Brenda and her parents after the latest decision and to the assistant wrestling coach at San Jose state.

Brenda's mother, Jody Nunes, said Friday they are happy with the new decision but have requested they get it in writing so there would be no question in the future of her daughter's eligibility for the interscholastic program.

Meet the council candidates

Four vie for two city spots

"Vote for" signs were going up around town last week, a reminder of the Tuesday, March 7 municipal election.

Locally, the two city council seats are the only contest, with four candidates. City Treasurer Nadine Sargent and City Clerk Phyllis Acker are running unopposed.

Recently the Campbell PRESS submitted seven questions to the four council candidates. They were:

- Why are you running for (re)election?
- What special talents do you feel you can bring to the office of city councilman/councilwoman?
- What is your opinion of the city's plan to acquire the old Campbell grammar school for a neighborhood center? If you are in favor, how would the city proceed now?
- What is the major issue(s) facing this city in the next two years? How should (it) they be handled?
- In recent years Campbell has become more involved in recreation and community service functions (i.e., senior nutrition, tiny tots program, leisure classes). Do you favor this trend? Why? What needs not presently met in this area would you like to see addressed in the future?
- Are you in favor of the countywide paramedic program? Why?
- At a recent meeting the problem of enforcement of the city sign ordinance was brought up. What is your opinion of the present way of handling sign regulations? Are there any changes you'd like to see?

The statements of the candidates are run in the order determined by a random drawing.

Running for office:

I have long had an interest in the functions of government on every level. But I have come to realize the increasingly important role that local government has in directly providing for the needs of the community. Local government is the level closest to the people and therefore has the greatest impact on the quality of life for its citizens.

The opportunity to seek public office is open to all who have the interest, time and energy to run. I believe that Campbell can be best served by more active and direct participation by more city residents. (It is for this reason that I support a term limitation for all city council members.) Campbell could only benefit by having a fresh outlook and new ideas represented on the city council. It's time for a change and I look forward to serving the city and people of Campbell.

Qualifications:

Through my many years of active volunteer participation in various levels of politics and government, I have developed a knowledge of how the administrative process works. I believe that I can put this knowledge to good use as a representative on the city council. I have demonstrated my leadership abilities through my activities in the organizations and groups to which I belong. As a long time resident of this community, I believe I have an awareness of the attitudes of the people of Campbell. I realize the frustration that many people feel when dealing with unresponsive government. I realize the limitations of local government but I am fully aware of its potential. I am committed to more open government and believe that my experience and awareness of public needs will be an asset to the city council.

Neighborhood center plan:

Yes, Campbell should acquire the grammar school site. Federal funds should be pursued to the fullest. If the school site is designated as an historical building, state funds may be available. As a last resort, a bond measure should be placed on the ballot. Since the citizens of Campbell have indicated their support for the acquisition of this site as a neighborhood center, they should be willing to endorse this method of funding.

Major issues:

Some of the issues facing Campbell are the following:

Land acquisition: First, it would be advantageous to the city and the people to annex the pockets of County land within the city limits. Residents of these areas need to be shown the advantages of becoming a part of Campbell.

Second, it is necessary to discuss the issue of the so-called sphere of influence areas with surrounding communities particularly the city of San Jose. I strongly believe that the wishes and concerns of the citizens be met. I do not consider "sphere of influence" boundaries to be set in concrete.

Third, it is necessary to make an effort to acquire unused school sites. School property and lands should not be sold for business or commercial development. These are some of the few remaining open spaces. Furthermore, schools are ideal sites as neighborhood centers (as recreational facilities, adult and continuing education centers, nutritional, health and child care centers, libraries, etc.). Studies have already been made of Campbell's neighborhoods and this would help in determining the special usage of schools in particular areas.

Houseing: As growth evolves, we must assure a good mix to meet the demands of all the citizens.

Tax Reform: We must provide the best for the least; that is, we must look to providing essential services if major property tax reform and/or Jarvis-Ganns is passed. Every citizen must be asked to help establish service priorities. Town meetings in the neighborhoods should be held to inform the people on city financing and budgeting. I think the time has come to call upon citizens to volunteer in their neighborhoods, to do more for themselves, as once was done. People gain a greater sense of belonging by participating in neighborhood and community activies.

Community services:

I favor the trend towards community service functions. The city has to take a leadership role in providing an environment which enhances and enriches the quality of life for its citizens. However, the citizen has to also take responsibility by volunteering services. The acquisition and usage of school properties, as discussed in question four, is certainly a part of this question. This would make it easier to address the needs of various groups.

Recognizing that recreation is a major cost item in providing quality environment, the city should exercise leadership by bringing together all interested groups and act as facilitator to plans which would meet the needs of all citizens. Shared costs, use of volunteer organizations and individuals should be considered in this discussion.

Countywide paramedics:

Campbell is fortunate to have an ongoing Paramedic Program. I would hope that all citizens could have the security of knowing that paramedics were available. However, I would not like this to mean that a county paramedic program would result in lessening the service in Campbell. If the county takes the program over, it should fund it and certainly should utilize the Campbell Fire Department in the program.

Signs:

The present way of dealing with signs is confusing to the applicant, the planning commission and the city council. It must be made clearer to all parties concerned. It is not fair to have applicants wait so long as a result of this confusion. Most of them are small business people. It is most important that business names and presence be known quickly for their success which also contributes to and benefits the city.

The use of graphics and murals is a new exciting way to cover drab walls and should be distinguished from free standing, protruding and/or illuminated advertisements of the business locale.

ARLENE EVANS

This 41-year-old homemaker has lived in this area most of her life. She is making her first bid for elective office. She graduated from local schools and holds an associate of arts degree from San Jose city college. She and her husband, Brent, are the parents of eight children and live at 1660 Calado court.

Running for office:

I want to work on developing a greater sense of community in Campbell. Being a woman, and an interested "average" citizen of Campbell, I feel I can contribute to the balance and perspective I feel our council now lacks. I want Campbell to be a community in which all of its interested citizens feel they have or can have an active part in government.

Qualifications:

I know how to help people feel comfortable in talking about their needs and what they want to achieve. I also know how to build enthusiasm for working together toward common goals. I like people!

Neighborhood center plan:

We need to protect our heritage and a sense of roots. This is one reason we should look carefully at acquiring the old grammar school for a neighborhood center. Having such a center, of course, would help develop the sense of community I feel is so important for Campbell. Such efforts need to be done prudently with a concern for costs and a need for wide community support.

Major issues:

The major issue is the development of a sense of community. A feeling that this is our city and that we have an active stake in its problems and its future. That the city is not just "run well" by others, but that it is our city. That our contributions make it what it is. That prevention of crime is "our" business. That the beauty of our city is "our" concern. That the economic health of our city is "our" responsibility.

I believe this can be done by encouraging the development of neighborhood groups and representation. Neighborhood elected representatives could sit in on council meetings to represent their particular areas. Neighborhood meetings could help focus person-to-person help in reducing crime, improving leisure time opportunities, and building a better community in which to live.

Community services:

We really have made good progress in the area of recreation and community service functions. Barbara Harison (coordinator) and staff are to be commended for their efforts. Two things that would help would be: a neighborhood community center and a community schools program.

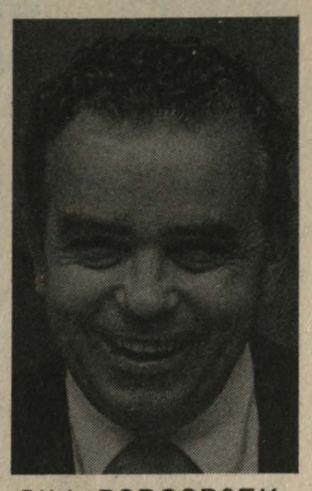
The achievement of either or both of these goals would increase our ability to coordinate people and resources. As a result, we would be able to provide a maximum of recreational and educational opportunities with real cost efficiency.

Countywide paramedics:

In my discussions with people so far, it seems there may be advantages to a countywide paramedic program. Right now, even though it is excellent, we only have one unit to respond to calls. With a countywide program there would be backup units in case of double or extensive emergencies. There would also be possibly more opportunities for personnel development with a countywide program.

Signs:

Voluntary community efforts could pay off much more than simply trying to enforce stricter sign ordinances.



BILL PODGORSEK

This 48-year-old printing firm owner is seeking a third term on the City Council. Bill and his wife, Arelene, are the parents of two children and live at 860 Virginia avenue.

Running for office:

I would like to continue to serve the citizens of Campbell for another four-year term. As in the past, I have been very receptive to our citizens in "people programs." Being a City Councilman gives me the pride of representing ALL the people in our great little city.

Qualifications:

I have served as Mayor on two different occasions, 1972-73 — 1977-78. As Mayor in 1972, I served as chairman of the Mayor's Committee, Inter-City Council. For three and one-half years I served on the Board of Directors of Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG). At the present time I am on the Santa Clara County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO). With this record it brings to Campbell a very good rapport with outside agencies, as we need cooperation in all areas.

Neighborhood center plan:

My record will show that I have always favored the grammar school site as a neighborhood center, which would include a place for seniors, youth and ALL the citizens of Campbell. We should continue to work with the Trustees of the School District to have this become a reality.

Major issues:

One of the major undertakings is the Council's decision of extending our Fire Protection service to three engine companies. This will give extended fire service to ALL of our citizens in equal response time. Our City is growing in population and we have many new commercial developments and fire protection is one of the top priorities. As far as funding for the new stations and personnel at some given time a general obligation bond issue is evident.

Community services:

I have always favored recreation and community services as long as there isn't a duplication of those services. The nutrition program should be extended to serve more of our senior citizens. With programs such as we offer it gives everyone a chance to do what the community wants to do. I really think a strong need is to have a place for the youth in our community to meet.

Countywide paramedics:

I have always supported the countywide paramedic program. I feel ALL of the residents of Santa Clara County should have the protection that the Campbell citizens have had in the past three to four years. We should all have this service wherever we may be in the county.

Signs:

I think the sign ordinance should be complied with. The City of Campbell has worked very hard in cleaning up our city from unsightly signs. The rule should be upheld that signs should be for designation only.

RALPH DOETSCH

This 64-year-old property manager, a 56-year resident, is seeking a fifth term on the City Council. He and his wife, Lorraine, are the parents of five and the grandparents of two. They live at 1580 Dell avenue.

Running for office and qualifications:

I have a desire to serve the citizens of our community, and the ability to understand and effectively deal with community problems. My experience in community affairs, my familiarity with the community, and its needs, assists me in representing the citizens of Campbell.

Neighborhood center plan:

I am in favor of the City evaluating the feasibility of acquiring the Old Campbell Grammar School for the use as a neighborhood center. The City must first determine the cost of acquiring the property, developing it to meet all codes, and the cost of maintaining and operating the facility. Once these costs are established, all available funding resources should be evaluated, to determine the fiscal impact of proceeding with the project.

Major issues:

One of the major issues facing us is the fiscal health of the City. We must be prepared to react to the proposed state-wide property tax modifications. We will have to attempt to maintain our level of services, while limiting our operating costs.

Community services:

I have in the past, and continued to support the City's involvement in the providing of recreation and community service programs. I have supported these activities because they serve community needs that other cities have served for a number of years. But Campbell was previously not able to because of fiscal constraints. Emphasis should be placed on those programs not already offered through other local public agencies. I feel that programs for our growing Senior Citizen population is especially important.

Countywide Paramedics:

I am in favor of a countywide Paramedic Program, because of the need to provide this important service to all county residents on a coordinated basis. However, the City must be careful in assuring that the level of paramedic services provided to our citizens is not lowered through the implementation of the countywide program.

Signs:

The enforcement of the City sign ordinance is going to be discussed at an upcoming joint study session of the City Council and Planning Commission. I feel that the review process should be evaluated for possible streamlining.

In addition, the criteria for evaluating signs should be more specific so as to assist staff and planning commissioners in their evaluation.

Remove Jarvis tax initiative State defends measure?

By CHARLES BOSDET
Capitol News Service

Efforts to remove the controversial Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative from the June primary ballot will meet stiff resistance from two key state officials in response to a suit challenging the measure as unconstitutional.

Secretary of State March Fong Eu and Attorney General Evelle Younger say they will defend placement of the measure, slated as Proposition 13, on the ballot and claim there is nothing unconstitutional about the proposal.

Under the initiative a one per cent ceiling would be set on property taxes; reassessments would be limited to a two per cent hike per year. The measure, according to its author, is intended to cut combined government spending by 15 per cent and remove such services as welfare and food stamps from property tax assessments.

However, in a suit filed in Sacramento Superior Court, Orange County Superior Court Judge Bruce Sumner and attorney Edward Wallin argue that the measure deals with more than one issue. Such an allegation, if true, would render the initiative in violation of the state constitution, which provides that initiatives shall deal only with a single issue.

They further contend that the title and summary of the measure which appeared on its petitions, as prepared by Younger, are "misleading." "In reality," Sumner told Capitol News, property tax is "one quarter" of what is involved.

"It deals with several things ... One, it deals with property tax; two, it eliminates majority rule in the Legislature; and it eliminates representative government at the local level insofar as taxes are concerned," Sumner states.

He notes the measure would require a two-thirds vote of both legislative houses for the state to raise its taxes, and would also make it extremely difficult for local government to raise its taxes.

"Under the Jarvis proposal any city, county or local government could not pass any tax increase by ordinance," Sumner says, "but instead would be required to submit it to the voters. (The Jarvis proposal) would require a two-thirds vote of (approval by) registered voters" before local government could hike taxes.

Not only is that more than a mere property tax adjustment, Sumner argues, it belies the title given the proposition: the Jarvis-Gann Property Tax Limitation Initiative.

"My judgment is that both allegations are wrong." Secretary Eu stated in prepared remarks, "Proposition 13 clearly relates to one subject, namely limiting property taxes in California. All of the tax mechanisms in the measure are explicitly devised with that goal in mind."

And, she says, "The 1.2 million signers of the measure knew precisely what they were doing when they signed it."

Under those conditions, she claims, she was obliged to certify the initiative for the June primary.

For his part, Younger agrees with Ms. Eu.

"The contention that the initiative measure embraces more than one subject in violation of the California Constitution was evaluated by our office when we prepared the petition title and summary," he stated in prepared remarks. He said his office is currently in court on two cases involving the number of subjects covered by an initiative.

"The Jarvis measure would make fundamental changes in the structure of government in California at both the state and local levels," Sumner persists. "It says (in the petition's summary), 'Authorizes local governments to raise taxes.' That's not the case ... There is no question that any charter county and city would be affected ... Clearly it affects all taxes, not just property taxes...

"In the area of local government, local governments could not pass any tax increase by administrative ordinance, but must submit it to voters.

EDITOR:

Santa Clara County is now partially subsidizing fares for those who ride trains between Santa Clara County and San Francisco. How nice!

I heard a rumor to the effect that this subsidy is being paid for by voluntary contributions from the pay checks of the politicians and bureaucrats on all government payrolls in Santa Clara County. If it develops there is any truth to the rumor, that would be very nice.

There is no reason why they should spend the money of other people for this purpose — although spending the money of other people is one of their greatest joys — and one of the easiest things to do.

CALL 246-5480

We hear you

You must have received this call from many other people but I just wanted to correct that "wreck havoc" headline in the PRESS. You aren't the only one that uses that redundant phrase. Even a TV commentator used it recently. The term is wreak not wreck havoc.

ENGLISH MAJOR

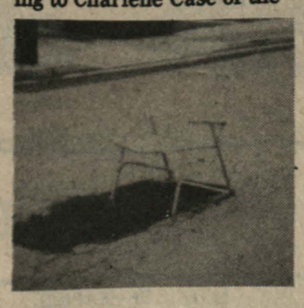
Editor's note: Thank you for the call. You weren't alone.

Editor's note: In a recent "We Hear You" we reported that a local resident was looking for a group to donate her two redwood saplings to. We got a call from Lilyan Brannon of the United New Conservationists and her group will be removing the trees and planting them as part of a highway beautification program.

I just thought you might like to see a picture of what one resident of N. Harrison st. did when he found a big chuckhole in the street (he put a lawn chair over it.). That Wednesday he called public works and about eight or 10 people came out but they didn't know what to do. The next morning he called again at 10 a.m. and that chuckhole, about 18 inches deep, is still there. Why?

CURIOUS

Editor's note: According to Charlene Case of the Public Works Department the city received a call on Wednesday and went out immediately to put up barriers (and remove the chair) until Sanitation District 4 crews could come out and fix it. The chuck hole was fixed that day but evidently there was a re-occurrence the next day. They again called district 4. A call to district offices the same day you came in brought the response that they'd "just heard about it 10 minutes ago" and had someone on the way to fix it.



Why were the Valentine limericks published two days after Valentine's Day? It sure doesn't do much good when you've written a limerick for someone special. It should have been out that day or before.

A READER

Editor's note: I agree. According to Mary Roberts, classified director, the limericks were run in all 15 Suburban papers. Four published on Tuesday (Valentine's Day) and the rest on Wednesday with one exception. The only Thursday paper is the PRESS. Mary says next year those limericks will be published on or before Valentine's Day.

I just wanted to call and commend the fire department for their help when the tree fell on our house during the big storm. They did a great job and were there in nothing flat. Even Councilman Norm Paul (a neighbor) was there helping and other neighbors came over to help too. They were all really great and I'd like to commend them for their help. One other thing. I'm not really complaining but the article in the paper described us as an elderly couple. I'm 65 and my husband is 68 so I guess technically we are elderly. Really though, I'd rather be described as retired, not elderly. I don't feel elderly.

Visions of sugarplums ...give me nightmares

By PAT SAFFORD

FOR DIETERS who fall off the wagon at the drop of a chocolate eclair, there's one sure fire way to lose that sweet tooth . . . permanently.

Just sign up to be "dessert chairman" at one of your club's fundraising events.

Not only will you be able to resist a thick slice of Ferman chocolate cake. You'll even feel a little queasy when filling the sugar bowl.

This revelation came to me quite by accident. At the committee meeting for the country Woman's Club fashion show-dessert it was time to assign jobs.

"Who'll be our dessert chairman?," Elizabeth asked. I raised my hand.

When I saw the reaction from other committee members (disbelief) I put my hand back down. It was too late.

ACTUALLY DESSERT chairman is a public relations term for kitchen chairman. In addition to handling the goodies for 200 guests and 30 helpers, there are dishes . . . about 1,000 pieces give or take a hundred.

The KP duties weren't a problem. But, they didn't bring any benefits either.

The real plus was the desserts.

At 8 a.m. that day as the mouth-watering confections began arriving I "oohed" and "aahed" over each contribution. A cake here, a pie there and tarts, cheese cake and meringes for good measure. The novelty wore off fast.

By 11 a.m. I didn't look at the desserts, just put them in the refrigerator or on the counter for slicing.

BY 1 P.M. I COULDN'T look at the desserts.

A diabetic would have gone into a coma just walking in that kitchen now filled to overflowing. A strong aroma of chocolate, mixed lemon, strawberry and whipped cream filled the air (Yes, in great quantities, whipped cream does have an aroma).

By 2:30 when most of the dishes were scrapped off and the models and helpers fed, it was time to leave.

"Don't forget your goodies," called Lee as I made my way out the door, "I saved these for you to take home."

"What's the matter? You don't look like you feel well."

THE LONG stretch of empty railroad track along Pollard road wouldn't be so empty if a plan by a group of concerned Cupertino area residents goes through. Almost mile long trainloads of cement and gravel from the Kaiser quarry in Cupertino would be chugging through the Vasona junction and downtown Campbell area on its way to a proposed transfer station in northwest San Jose. The Special Committee on Kaiser wants to find a way to cut down on the heavy truck traffic going to and from the Cupertino quarry. Their latest idea is rail. Last Wednesday, at a meeting of the committee, Kaiser officials estimated it would take three days for each trainload to make a round trip between Cupertino and the proposed transfer station, largely because of loading, unloading and routing procedures. (Photography by Amy Huntoon)

county supervisors can't force Kaiser to use rail."

Last month the committee studied the possibility of rerouting the present Kaiser truck traffic which would have required a new interchange at highway 280 in the Los Altos area.

When Los Altos residents heard of the plan they turned out in force to voice opposition.

That rerouting suggestion was dropped by the committee.

Civic awareness on the decline?

If it is true that an informed citizenry makes a democracy work, the United States appears to be headed for trouble in years to come. A survey of American teenagers indicated that most know extremely little about the simplest fundamentals of how their government works. And what's more, this year's findings of the National Assessment of Education Progress, a federal testing project, disclosed an apalling decline in civic awareness from six years ago among some 145,000 youngsters surveyed — and this after a period of heightened public interest in politics.

Most teenagers knew the name of the President, but fewer than half could name one of their senators or representatives. A fourth did not know the Senate is part of Congress. About a third did not know a senator is elected. More than a third did not believe a newspaper should be allowed to criticize elected officials.

Such lack of basic knowledge is cause for concern. The problem obviously goes deeper than the steadily dropping enrollment in social studies in public schools. The schools must shoulder some of the blame. Civic courses ought to be more lively and interesting, and they ought to be made a requirement for getting a high-school diploma.

But, as educators who conducted the survey noted, the family, the community, and the communications media also wield considerable influence over youngsters. They, too, ought to assume more responsibility for educating American youth in the principles and workings of democracy.

Pharmacist's license revoked by state board

A Campbell druggist, arrested last year on two felony charges, has lost his pharmacist's license, the State Board of Pharmacy announced last week.

Harold Sofris, 41, owner-manager of Campbell Drugs and Pharmacy, Inc., 1739 Winchester blvd., had his license revoked effective Feb. 15 and the local pharmacy received a 30 day penalty and was placed on three years probation.

The retail portion of the store can remain open during the penalty period but the pharmacy will be closed until March 16.

Sofris was arrested in May of 1977 by members of the San Jose Police Department burglary suppression team.

Two felony charges (buying and receiving stolen goods and selling a controlled substance without a prescription) were filed on June 2 in superior court. The trial date has been set for Feb. 22 at 9 a.m.

According to a spokesman for the pharmacy board, the license revocation came about because of five charges. They were: unprofessional conduct, sale of a controlled substance without a prescription, commission of a crime, sale of prescription drugs without a prescription and improper record keeping.

The business penalty and probation came as a result of those charges.

Originally the permit for the local pharmacy was revoked but that judgment was stayed and the three year probation imposed.

Conditions of that probation include submission of quarterly written reports and that during the entire period Sofris "shall not enter the secured pharmacy area of the store."

The arrest came last year after months of investigation by San Jose police and pharmacy board investigators.

Dog obedience class planned

Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks?

Campbell Community Services is now taking sign-ups for an eight week course in beginning dog obedience. Dogs must be at least six months old.

Masters and mistresses (at least 12 years old) will work with their dog to teach such commands as heel, sit down, stand, stay and come.

Fee for the Thursday evening class is $13. Call 378-8141 weekdays for more information.

Surprise: houses gotten slightly cheaper

Some fair — if not good — news has come to light with word central Santa Clara Valley houses are slightly cheaper of late.

The average re-sale price of a San Jose area home has gone down $67 between January and December but still stands at a little over $71,000, according to figures from the San Jose Board of Realtors.

The realtors' group says the housing market is beginning to correct itself from spiraling valuation increases recorded during 1977, sometimes almost $7,500 or five percent a month.

Real estate in the Santa Clara Valley is expected to continue one per cent monthly appreciation this year. Realtors now say there is a slight increase in the number of multiple listings for home sales.

Statistics show only about a quarter of the recent home sellers actually got the price they first asked. Realtors feel supply of homes will more closely equal demand this year.

During the first six months of last year, the average San Jose area home price went from $57,000 to $74,000, sometimes double the purchase price of several years ago.

Saj won't find that thornless rose

FOR
For Feb. 25 through Mar. 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A Mounty always gets his man, though not always on the first try. So too with you, Ari. Now that you have the scent, distance is the key. Keep on trackin'. You find important clue in the obvious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ask for seconds only after you've finished firsts, Taurus. Chew and digest current interest before biting off anything new. Exciting entree on the way — but all in good time. In the meantime, content yourself with hors d'oeuvres.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): No use hurrying if you're on the wrong track, Gem. Retrace steps and find error. Time spent reviewing past decisions not spent in vain. Once rerouted, you can proceed with all possible haste.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You call "Bingo!" if you look for diagonal rather than straight win. Other players lack your original insight and may expect conventional move. Week marches to a foxy finish.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Make sweep that's really clean, Leo, and don't forget corners. Discard "creative clutter" — and that includes hats, books, friends and lovers. You will understand.

VIRGO (August 23-Sept. 22): New phase coming up, so be prepared to circulate. Career advancement indicated. One in position of authority watches from the shadows, Virgo, so smile. A lot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can only play the cards you've been dealt, Lib, so try bluffing. Straight face will baffle opponents. Let others move before you call. End of week finds you flushed, flattened and fatigued.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Fit as a fiddle, you look for bow with which to make some music. Don't waste tip-top shape on part-time player, Scorp, when maestro waits in the wings. As week ends, music swells and you hit C in three different octaves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22.-Dec. 21): A rose is a rose is a rose, Saj, and you can't have blossoms without thorns. Sticky situation demands you handle with care. Gently, gently. Restraint and delicacy pay off. You'll see.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Silent message is dispatched. Listen with your heart, Cap. Taurus, Libra individuals enter scene. Before week is over, as independence marches in the door, doubt flies out the window. Hooray!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Path narrows, Aquari, and the only way to go is straight ahead and quickly. No dawdling this week, my friend. Last day finds you checking your watch, your calendar and your mirror.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Ideas planted now will come up in spring, Pisces. Be positive. Seeds of discontent can only result in unhappy thicket. Search silently within for solution to present dilemma. Week ends with a sigh.

CHP recruiting female cadets

In an effort to increase employment opportunities for women, including those from ethnic minorities, the California Highway Patrol will be recruiting during February for the position of State Traffic Officer Cadet-Female.

The starting salary is $1,259 per month. The names of women who pass the written and oral interview tests will be placed on the civil service elegible list.

Candidates selected for training will attend the CHP Academy near Sacramento for 21 weeks before they graduate and become State Traffic Officers.

Access to parks

By a vote of 27 to 8, the State Senate approved a bill which would provide inner-city residents with improved transportation access to outlying parks and recreation areas.

Senate Majority Floor Leader David A. Roberti, (D-Hollywood), sponsored the bill, which would request $5 million in grants for local government projects to transport people from urban areas to outlying regional, state and federal parks.

The $5 million would cover about three years.

Margarine in restaurants

A new law sponsored by Senator Roberti, SB 1270, would make it easier for consumers to be served margarine in restaurants.

The bill would repeal a special interest law enacted in 1927 restricting the service of margarine in restaurants.

The Department of Consumer Affairs supports the bill which, according to Senator Roberti, would not only help the consumer but would also assist the small independent restaurant owner who finds himself already overwhelmed by too much red tape.

Maddy for governor

The campaign committee of Ken Maddy, (R-Fresno), has reported in their year-end campaign statement that the Assemblyman has nearly a half million dollars in the war chest for Maddy's gubernatorial campaign.

The latest report shows continued strong support for Maddy from agriculture and the construction and trucking industries.

Expecting a refund?

It's tax time again and State Controller Kenneth Core said today that most of the millions of Californians now filing or working on their State income tax returns can expect to share in about $800 million of refunds.

Cory said he expects to issue about six million income tax refunds this year, most of them to persons whose state income taxes were over-withheld from wages. Others will go to non-withholding taxpayers who overpaid on tax estimates. Last year almost $744 million in refunds were paid to over 5.8 million taxpayers.

Model Legislature

The Capitol played host recently for more than 700 high school students from all over California participating in the YMCA 30th Annual Model Legislature.

The students carried out the myriad details of a mock state government, involving everything from committee work and lobbying to debating and passing bills in both houses.

Mental health programs

The Assembly Subcommittee on Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities released a major study of California's mental health system which called for sweeping changes in state hospitals and community mental health programs.

The report points to the lack of goals in the mental health system, stating "it appears to be a service program without clear purpose."

The study suggested that state hospitals reduce institutionalization and develop the capability to prevent mental disorders in the future.

Pollution from motorcycles

During a recent meeting, the California Air Resources Board adopted the nation's first standards to control evaporative hydrocarbon emissions from motorcycles.

Deputy Executive Officer Tom Austin said he expected the Environmental Protection Agency to adopt the ARB standards on a nationwide basis.

Speeding truckers

California Highway Patrol Commissioner Glen Craig reported that for the sixth consecutive month, arrests of truck drivers violating the speed limit or tailgating have exceeded the number for the same month a year ago.

The commissioner said that 4,195 truck drivers were arrested for speeding and another 308 citations were issued for tailgating.

He indicated that the CHP would continue its strict enforcement policy against oversize vehicles violating the speed limit or following too close.

Uninsured vehicles

New legislation designed to keep uninsured vehicles off the road has passed the State Assembly by a vote of 51 to 21.

The bill, AB 1993, would require that some proof of insurance or financial responsibility be furnished before any vehicle could be registered or re-registered with the Department of Motor Vehicles.

All emergency phone system

New legislation introduced by Senator John Holmdahl, D-Alameda County, would modify the timetable of deadlines for implementing the 911 Emergency Telephone System program.

Currently, cities and counties would be required to have the single number emergency system in operation by December 31, 1984.

The Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee has heard testimony, Holmdahl said, which shows that there "are significant controversies over the type of equipment and level of service that is to be funded from the telephone surcharge now being collected."

Farm and grazing land

The program to designate California's prime agricultural farm and grazing lands received a boost recently when several Senators introduced a Senate Joint Resolution to expedite the inventory of the state's farmlands.

SJR 36, introduced by Senators Garamendi, Zenovich, Smith and Nejedly memorialized the Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture to complete the inventory no later than September 30, 1979.

Managing water

Legislation intended to set up a comprehensive system for managing groundwater resources has been introduced to the state Senate. Senate Bill 1505 would require the preparation of groundwater management plans to serve as guidelines in the use of such water resources.

Board is split over retraction

The demand for a retraction of an article in the Norseman student newspaper was almost retracted by West Valley College District trustees last Thursday.

A motion to retract that request failed on a 3-3 vote.

The student newspaper earlier charged the district with maintaining overcrowded classrooms. A study by the district's academic senate resulted in the conclusion that the board acted hastily in asking for the retraction.

Supporting the motion were Trustees Foster Lopes, John Cantlen and Carol LaMarre.

In a related matter Dr. Mel Tushcer, president of West Valley College, presented the final report on overcrowded classroom conditions. He noted that all full and part-time instructors have been notified of maximum seating capacities for each room and have been instructed not to exceed those limits.

While Trustee Cantlen supported the motion to retract the retraction that evening he made it clear he wasn't giving an endorsement of the paper's article.

"The headline on the original article in the Norseman tended to be inflammatory, and the story indicated collusion and malfeasance in office," Cantlen charged. "I don't think the administration ever said there weren't any problems (with overcrowded classrooms)," he added.

Board member Ben Gould, in voting against the motion, said he believed the original article had "malicious intent" and reiterated his request for an attrition study to determine how many students originally enroll in a class and subsequently drop out before the end of the semester.

McMURPHY'S OPENS

Ace McMurphy's is the new name for the old Sunsweet Hall at The Factory which now offers restaurant facilities in addition to breakfast and lunch banquets.

New owners Jennis Ortiz, Steve Gericke and Jim Viglizzo say the redesigned facility has a seating capacity of over 200 now and later plans call for adding an outdoor eating area on property to the west of the building.

The owners also operate Pewter House, a restaurant in Oakland and will be opening another Ace McMurphy's in the city of the oaks about April 15.

FACILITATOR Tom Swaffer works with a group of Campbell Junior High School students, teachers, parents and administrators at the "Climate Day" program held at the First United Methodist Church of Campbell last Wednesday. The purpose of the special program, which included large and small group sessions, was to help the school community gain an understanding of each other as individuals instead of "students" or "teachers." Close to 60 students, five teachers, two parents, three counselors and the vice principal took part in the sessions described as "highly successful" by Coordinator Barbara Bold. Another session, incolving different students, parents and staff, is planned for April.

How many of you remember the good old days of the ITALIAN VILLAGE on Columbus St. in S.F.? Well, our good friend, John Bikakis, was the host/owner whose entertainers included such notables as Jerry Colona, Bob Hope, the Andrew Sisters, Mickey Rooney, to name a few. The same John Bikakis is now the affable owner of the ECHO RESTAURANT in Los Altos . . . he's always on hand to see that the service is excellent, the kitchen is run properly & only the finest cuts of meats & the freshest vegs. are served. JAN & ANGELO entertain in the lounge. You'll find everybody's friend PETE PANGRACS at the bar!

If you enjoy antiques & memorabilia, you'll love CLEMENTINE'S situated in front of the Emporium at the Stanford Shopping Center. There're bicycles built for two, gas pump aquariums, Tiffany lamp shades & attractively costumed waitresses. The music of "MAMA BERE," talented girl musicians, is presently being enjoyed — they're really packing in the crowds. So, remember CLEMENTINE'S for fine Continental cuisine, unique decor & great entertainment. Jazz music every Tues. night by the "Chamberpots"!

I like the guarantee that stands behind every steak at SIRLOIN AND BREW UNLIMITED. Owner & founder Ed Driscoll buys the best beef he can find for his restaurants. Whether you order the V.I.P. ($4.79) or the Steak Kabob ($5.45) you w/get it prepared exactly as you order it. If not, he asks that you tell the waitress to bring it back to the kitchen for another one. Of course, she w/bring you the all-you-wish amounts of wine, beer or sangria & you have your fill of the Gourmet Salad Bar for the one price. Ed promises you won't go away hungry or disappointed. He's a man after my own heart!

Many readers ask me to name restaurants that serve brunch on Sat. . . . the HWEI FU SHING serves a lunch Mon.-Sat. from 11-2 p.m. Selections change daily — some of the items are vegs. combinations, Sweet & Sour Pork, Beef w/Broccoli, Egg Rolls, BBQ or Fried Chicken, Mushroom Chicken & Fried rice & noodles. On Sat. a spec. Chinese Bun is served filled w/meat & vegs., & it's delicious. A great place to take the children — they are usually given an extra cookie or 2 & treated like little VIP's.

nutrition notes

How much fat can a good diet include?

By DOROTHY TERRILL

Editor's Note: Dorothy Terrill, a registered dietitian and instructor at De Anza College, holds an M.S. in nutrition from U.C. Berkeley. Questions about nutrition are invited. Address all questions to: Dorothy Terrill, Nutrition Notes, Suburban Newspaper Publications Inc., P.O. Box 368, Cupertino, 95014. Mrs. Terrill will answer questions as space allows.

Some time ago I wrote a column which was titled "Time for A Drastic Change in U.S. Diet" at which time I explained the U.S. Dietary Goals as formulated by the U.S. Senate Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. In that column I emphasized the recommendation for a lowered consumption of sugar and particularly recommended less sugar in children's diets.

In response to that column, a reader wrote to inquire about the amount of fat in the diet and the advisability of recommending peanut butter and nuts as nutritious snacks for children. She also wondered if sugar is that bad for children or anyone else, for that matter.

First, the sugar bit. Sugar has definitely been proved to be the cause of dental caries so right there is a reason not to give it to children unless we want their mouths full of fillings. It also takes the appetite away from more nutritious foods and contributes to obesity. With these strikes against it, it seems that the obvious thing is to provide as little sugar in the diet as possible. Table sugar (sucrose) is also thought to be unhealthy for the arteries. Honey is the same chemical compound as table sugar so it can't be recommended as a substitute for sugar.

Now to consider the fat content. It is true that peanut butter and nuts are high in fat. Peanut butter is approximately 50 percent fat and nuts range from 45 percent fat in cashews, 49 percent in peanuts, 55 percent fat in almonds, and a whopping 64 percent in walnuts. Nuts are a good source of protein but because of the high fat content are also high in calories. However, I would still prefer to see children given peanut butter (without jelly) on whole wheat bread or some nuts for a snack rather than cakes, cookies, candies, and other high sugared items.

The diet recommended for all Americans by the U.S. Senate Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs is low in fat (30 percent), low in sugar, and low in salt. These criteria present a challenge to the creative cook. There should be more vegetables, more fruits, and whole grain breads and cereals in the diet.

To put the lowered fat intake into perspective, especially for children, consider how much fat 30 percent of the diet would be. A child between the ages of 4 to 6 could have 540 calories or 60 grams fat each day. A child between the ages of 7 to 10 could have 720 calories or 80 grams of fat a day.

Now for the fat content of some of these high fat foods. Two tablespoons peanut butter contain 14 grams of fat. Nuts are really high — ½ cup walnut halves equals 32 grams fat, ½ cup cashews equals 28 grams, and ½ cup almonds equals 40 grams fat. Seeds are also high in fat. 3½ ounces sunflower seeds, pumpkin or squash kernels contain 47 grams of fat. There can be room in the diet for some of these foods, however.

Other foods which contribute fat to the diet include meat, milk, cheese, butter, margarine, oils, and salad dressings. One ounce of lean meat contains approximately 3 grams of fat. Since a 10-year-old child may eat 5 ounces of meat per day, he would eat 15 grams of fat from meat if it is low in fat. Non-fat milk, which contributes zero fat, is recommended for children over the age of 2. Cheddar type cheeses add approximately 8 grams of fat per ounce. One-fourth cup cottage cheese contains about 5 grams of fat. 1 teaspoon of margarine, butter, and oils each provide 5 grams of fat. It is more important to limit the fats and oils along with bacon, cream, and salad dressings — all of which provide few nutrients other than fat — and provide for some peanut butter, nuts, and seeds in the diet. These latter foods also provide protein, fiber, and some vitamins and minerals.

If the food is prepared with little frying and creaming but primarily broiled, baked, and boiled, there will be less fat in the diet. Desserts almost always contain plenty of both sugar and fat. Change from these rich baked goods to fruit, simple puddings and custards made with non-fat milk and you're cutting calories, fat, and sugar in the diet. A real service to the family's health!

Testing court interpreters

An Assembly measure to provide for a state program for testing and certification of court interpreters received strong backing from California Rural Legal Assistance this week. The bill, AB 2400, succeeds another bill which would have established an interpretor certification program; AB 1599 was vetoed by Governor Brown last year.

It costs money . . . your money . . . in the form of higher shelf prices to pay for bingo and games. All supermarkets operate on a low profit margin, so it's often necessary to increase profits to finance bingo and giveaways . . . and this is usually done by raising shelf prices. Lucky will not do business this way, because we believe customers want low food prices.

Actual Shopping Test

While she was shopping at Lucky, we invited Mrs. Joyce Willis to make a shopper's comparison test for us, and she agreed. Using her own shopping list of items she had personally selected, she purchased groceries at Lucky which totalled $89.66. She then purchased the same or comparable items at another nearby supermarket using her same shopping list. This time, the same or comparable items cost her $98.49. Mrs. Willis spent $8.83 less at Lucky.

Obviously, the amount of savings varies depending on each individual shopping list . . . but the important thing is that Lucky is committed to low everyday discount prices . . . not just a few prizes!

She reduced her food costs 9% shopping at Lucky!

Mrs. Willis' shopping comparison test was notarized by a licensed Notary Public on February 3, 1978.

Prospect turns Shaughnessy trick

Panthers beat Leigh twice to win title!

THE PROSPECT Panthers accomplished what had never been done before last Saturday night and the result was the first West Valley Athletic League basketball championship in their history.

The Panthers became the first non-regular season champion to win the WVAL title in the Shaugnessy play-offs by knocking off the first place Leigh Longhorns on consecutive nights at Blackford high.

The Panthers, who had opened the play-offs with a hard earned win over Del Mar last Thursday, upset Leigh 62-60 a night later and then stunned the Longhorns 75-61 on Saturday to capture the overall WVAL title.

Prospect received brilliant individual efforts from all five of its starters last Saturday night in its conquest of Leigh, a team that had defeated the Panthers twice during the regular season.

Center Nick Seroff, the Panthers' stellar 6'7" transfer from Samuel Ayer, paced the Prospect attack with 19 points, hitting on eight of eight shots from the field and three of three from the line before fouling out.

Forward Stan Kazmierczak did much more than his 16 points, six rebounds, three assists and three steals would indicate. With Seroff on the bench in foul trouble, Kaz took control of the Panther offense and kept Bert Robinson's crew in front with several key buckets.

KAZMIERCZAK was also a key factor in nullifying the Longhorns' normally devastating full court press by bringing the ball up court himself.

Contained to just two points in the first half, forward Paul Guenther finished the night with 13 points and four rebounds, helping the Panthers to pull away in the final two quarters.

Guard Rich Nelson also contributed 13 points and accounted for six more with three assists.

Tim Fleury, the Panthers' other talented guard, popped in 12 points, dished out six assists and made two steals in addition to leading Prospect at the free throw line.

The Panthers decided the game at the free throw line, where they canned 23 of 29 charity tosses. Prospect was particularly effective in the fourth period, sinking 17 of 22 chances.

Fluery was the top Panther performer at the line, meshing six of six attempts. R. Nelson was five for six and Kazmierczak was sixth for eight. Seroff was three for three.

Prospect trailed only once on the night, 6-4 in the opening moments of the game following a bucket by center Daryl Monk. But the Panthers never trailed again and slowly pulled away to the win.

PROSPECT forced the Saturday night game with a 62-60 win over Leigh on Friday.

Three Panthers hit in double figures to pace Prospect to the win over the regular season champion Longhorns.

Seroff led the Panthers with 20 points in the victory, most of those points coming on nine field goals.

Kazmierczak added 16 points for the winners and R. Nelson and Brad Guenther rounded out the scoring with four points each.

Prospect hit Leigh quick with 20 points in the first period to lead 20-10 at the first buzzer. But the Longhorns came flying back to outscore Prospect 27-10 in the second and go in at intermission up 37-30.

Prospect cut that lead by four in the third and outpointed Leigh in the fourth 20-15 to nail the very close two point win.

It was only Leigh's second loss of the year against a team from the WVAL.

Leigh star John Russo led all scorers in the game with 26 points and Monk hit 16.

PROSPECT HAD opened the Shaughnessy play-offs with a 54-49 victory over Del Mar.

No more than four points separated the two clubs in the first half and the Dons grabbed a 19-18 lead at the intermission on a bucket by Dave Davis.

The Dons held the lead until Seroff took up a missed shot with 5:01 left in the third to punch Prospect ahead 24-23.

The clubs traded hoops until Seroff but together back-to-back two pointers to give the Panthers a 30-27 lead with 2:30 left in the third.

Davis scored again to cut the lead to 30-29 but Prospect came back to score the next nine points to jump out to a 10 point lead at 39-29 with just 5:31 left to play.

Prospect upped that lead to 12 and then to 15 when Fleury made good a three point play with 1:48 left to up the Panther lead to 50-35.

Del Mar scored 14 of the last 20 points in the game but Prospect held on to record to the victory. Davis hit eight points and Sean Nalty and Leon Roat each scored six in that fourth period for Del Mar.

Fleury led the Panthers with 13 points in the win and Seroff added 12. P. Guenther joined the pair in twin figures with 10 and Kazmierczak hit nine. B. Guenther added four and R. Nelson, Ken Souza and Steve Roldan hit two each.

Davis led a list of five Dons to score in the game with 14 points and Nalty meshed 12. Bruce Minor joined the two in double figures with 10. Jim Quilici hit seven and Roat added his six in the fourth period.

Prospect outrebounded Del Mar 24-21 in the game with Seroff pulling off a game high 11. Kazmierczak added six for the Panthers and P. Guenther pulled four.

Minor led the Dons on the boards with seven rebounds and Quilici added six. Roat and Tom Bell each grabbed three.

Kazmierczak and Souza each handed out three assists for the Panthers and P. Guenther gave away two, along with notching three steals. Kazmierczak had two steals and a blocked shot and Seroff blocked two Don shots.

Davis had two assists to lead the Dons and Quilici and Roat each had two steals. Quilici blocked a shot in the loss.

IN ANOTHER first night game, Leigh handed Westmont a relatively easy 73-65 setback, but not until the Warriors threw a real first half scare into the Longhorns.

Westmont wouldn't give up in the first half and stayed point for point with Leigh, twice holding the lead.

But Leigh put the Warriors away 25-14 in the third quarter and cleared its bench early.

Westmont actually held the lead at one point in the first period when Mike Larsen's bucket made it 8-6 Warriors with 2:27 left to play.

Leigh went back on top, but never by more than a bucket, before Larsen and Bob Bossi hit back-to-back hoops in to give Westmont a 29-18 lead with 2:53 left in the half.

Leigh tied it but Alan Elliott came right back with two straight two-pointers to put Westmont up 24-20 with just 2:04 left in the half.

But Leigh hit eight points before intermission, six of them by Russo, to go up 28-24 before the buzzer.

Russo then turned in a 10 point third period to lead Leigh to the runaway.

Three Warriors hit in double figures in the game, including Craig Waltz who played his best game of the season.

Waltz scored 24 points on eight field goals and a perfect eight for eight from the free throw line to lead Westmont. He also led the club on the boards with eight rebounds, dished off a pair of assists and had one steal.

Larson and Art Day also hit in twin numbers in the game for the Warriors, canning 10 points each. Elliott dropped six points.

Day pulled down four rebounds in the loss and Larsen led the Warriors with five assists and three steals. Elliott handed away three assists and blocked a shot.

PROSPECT HAD finished the season two days earlier with an easy 69-49 win over Los Gatos while Westmont was losing to Leigh 58-50 and Del Mar was falling to Blackford 66-65.

Kazmierczak led the Panthers with 22 points in the win and Seroff drilled 13.

P. Guenther hit eight, Fleury seven, B. Guenther six, Souza five, R. Nelson four and Phil Angerole and John Evenson two each.

Larsen hit 20 and Elliott and Day dropped 10 each but Westmont lost to Leigh 58-50 to finish in a tie for fourth place with Del Mar. Waltz scored six in the loss and John Cory hit four.

The Dons fell 66-65 to Blackford despite a 21 point performance by Minor.

John Rossi poured in 19 points for the Braves and Tim Stanton added 17 to lead Blackford to the upset win. Joining the two in double figures was Dan Ferdinandsen with 16.

Nalty scored 18 and Bell canned 17 in the loss for Del Mar.

Spartans close out season

WITH THEIR home season now complete, the San Jose State University basketball team will close out the regular season this week with a pair of road games.

The Spartans will visit San Diego State on Thursday, Feb. 23, and Long Beach State on Saturday. Each game will air over KXRX radio (1500), Thursday at 7:45 p.m. and Saturday at 7:50 p.m.

San Jose held a 7-15 season record going into games last week, winning all seven at home.

Wally Rank and Tracy Haynes lead San Jose scorers this winter. Rank boasts a 15.3 per game scoring average in conference play and Haynes is averaging 12.1 points a game. Sid Williams sports a 10.1 conference average.

Rank leads the club with 135 rebounds and Stan Hill is close behind with 134. Rank has pulled down 72 rebounds in conference play and Hill, Williams and Haynes have each ripped down more than 40.

Townsend sinks 28

FORMER WEST Valley Athletic League standouts Curt Townsend (Camden) and Kevin Smith (Branham) turned in brilliant efforts last Wednesday to pace Menlo College to an 87-54 conquest of Cabrillo in Coast Conference basketball action.

Townsend, whose brother Ray is a senior for the UCLA Bruins, poured in 28 points to capture high game honors in the win while Smith tallied 18 points.

Dons 'number one' at Divisional finals

IT WAS LIKE the Del Mar Dons had something to prove on the wrestling mat at West Valley College last Saturday night!

The Dons had cruised through the West Valley Athletic League dual match season to a perfect 8-0 record to all but wrap up the league title before the league finals.

But at the finals the Dons finished third behind Camden and Westmont. It was a high enough finish to give Del Mar the league title, but it wasn't first.

Well, those Dons must have missed that number one spot. Because they came back to finish number one again last weekend at the Division II wrestling finals at WVC.

Three individual champions led a list of seven Don placers in the 13 weight classes at the Division tournament, five of them qualifying for the Central Coast Section championships.

The top four placers in each event at the Division tourney advance to the CCS tourney this Saturday at Independence high school. Wrestling begins at 9:30 a.m. with the finals set for 7 p.m.

GREG FISHER, Jorge Rodriquez and Dave Hernandez each walked away with titles for the Dons at the Division event.

Fisher won a very close 2-1 overtime decision in his last match at 98 pounds to claim his championship.

A somersaulting reversal in the third round lifted Rodriquez to a 5-4 decision win over Mt. View's Art Cantu in the finals at 136 pounds in the tourney.

Hernandez put Calvin Elliott of Cubberly on his back twice in the first round on his way to a lopsided 15-7 decision win in the championship match at 178 pounds.

Jeff Barone at 157 pounds and John Calloway at 194 each added thirds for the Dons and Larry Oreglia at heavyweight and Mike Fudally at 141 each finished fifth.

Four other WVAL wrestlers nabbed individual titles in the tournament.

Dean Antolin paced Westmont to a team fifth in the tournament with a title winning performance at 106 pounds. The star Warrior pinned in the finals to claim his title.

Manuel Gandarilla was second at 157 pounds and Eddie Valles at 98, Mark Nakano at 115 and Jim Dorsey at 123 were each fifth for the Warriors.

DAVE PUBLICOVER won the individual title at 130 pounds for Blackford with a 9-5 win in the finals. Publicover nailed a takedown with nine seconds left in the second and added another takedown with just 35 seconds left in the third to ice the victory.

Publicover led the Braves to a tie for sixth place in the tournament. Jeff Wilkins at 123 and Carl Guardino at 141 each added thirds for Blackford and Ken Gilbert picked up a fifth at 168.

Don Dodds was the lone Camden champ in the tourney, winning 5-0 in the finals at 148 pounds. Dodds gained a first round takedown and a second round escape and takedown to secure the victory.

Camden finished eighth as a team in the tournament. Eddie Gruss was third at 98 pounds for the Cougars with John Von Osdol at 157 and Chuck Gibbons at 141 each fourth and Don Rodrigues at 130 fifth.

JOHN MITTLESTEAD was the only other WVAL winner in the tourney, nailing a tight 2-0 decision in the finals at 123 pounds. Geof Rushing was third at 148 and Rick Kelly was fourth at 106 for the Bruins.

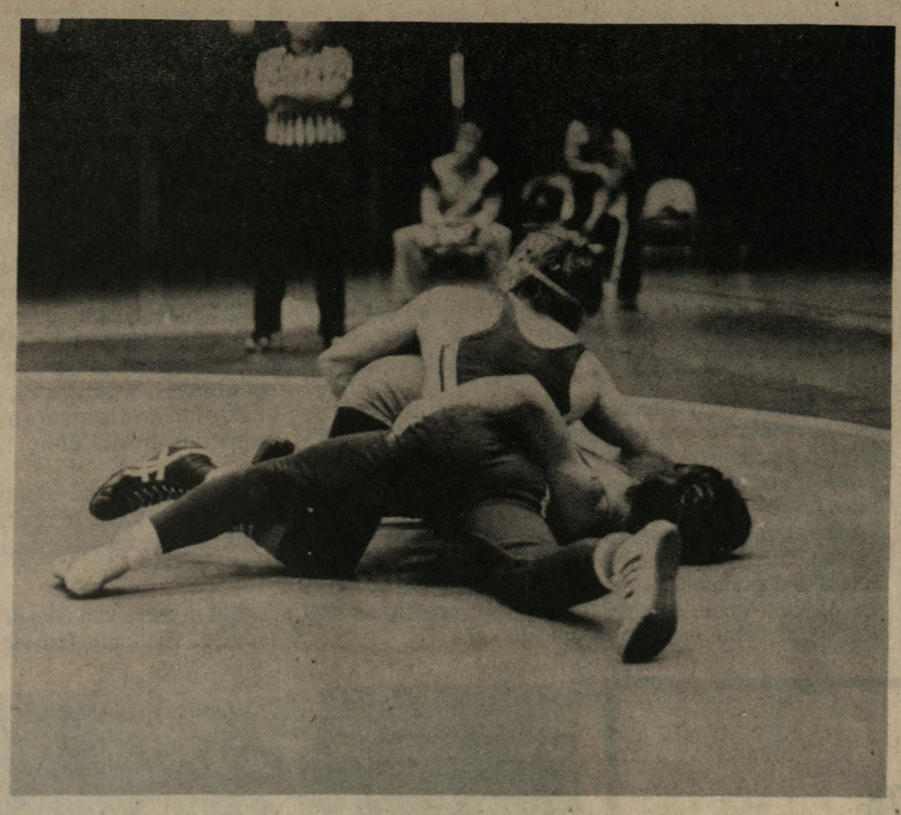
Damon Corrigan was second at 106 pounds, losing in the finals by fall to Antolin, and Ruben Escobedo at heavyweight was second, losing 14-7 in the finals, for Leigh in the tourney. Brad Edwards was third at 115 and Daryl Cramer was fifth at 136 for the Longhorns.

Chris Shimek picked up a third at 168 pounds and Mark Nieman was fifth at 194 for Prospect in the tourney and Steve Aimonetti was third at heavyweight for Campbell.

Jay Slivkoff was second at 130 pounds and Dave Dellavecchia was fourth at 178 pounds to rank as the lone placers for Los Gatos in the tournament, rounding out the list of WVAL placers.

The WVAL was battling the Santa Clara Valley Athletic League and West Catholic Athletic League in the Division II event.

The top four in each weight (23 performers from the WVAL) now advance to the CCS tournament this weekend. The top four in each weight at CCS move on to the State California Interscholastic Federation tournament set for March 3-4 at San Diego State College.



BRAVE CHAMP — Blackford's Dave Publicover works over Los Gatos' Jay Slivkoff on his way to the 130 pound championship at the Division II wrestling finals. Publicover won this match 9-5 to win the individual title in the tournament last Saturday at the West Valley College gym. Publicover will now advance along with 22 other members of the WVAL to the CCS tournament this Saturday.

Los Gatos finished first at the league finals to steal sole ownership of second place away from Camden in the final standings. Leigh finished second in the finals with the Warriors third.

Camden finished in a tie with Los Gatos for second in the standings and Del Mar was fourth. Leigh finished fifth.

It was the second straight year that Westmont has won the WVAL jv wrestling crown.

A little valley history unearthed by scouts

By ELIZABETH FERNANDEZ

A special Girl Scout project which studied windmills, water towers, and tank houses of Santa Clara County was recently completed and a pamphlet made on the information garnered.

The study of the past, considered Girl Scouting's "gift to the future," involved troops of scouts of all ages photographing structures and interviewing people throughout their neighborhoods in an effort to locate as many of the symbols of the past as possible.

The girls made several unexpected discoveries in the study which took almost a year to complete. They found that wind power is again coming into importance and that in rural areas, these old water systems have been in use all along. They also became aware of the need for public awareness on the structures' value for even as the study was being taken, some of the towers were being destroyed.

Under the study which was supported by the Sourisseau Academy "to preserve and document our heritage," the girls discovered over 100 historical structures. These varied in architecture from a three-legged windmill to a water tower which was part of a laundry operation, to a Spanish style tank house with stucco surface and tile roof. The structures also varied in age — one windmill was built in 1883 and pumped water for 72 years onto an orchard which is now gone. Another was built as recently as 1950 and is still being used for water storage.

Included in the study was extensive historical research. The scouts discovered that in the late 1850s in the San Jose region, many wells were dug for residential and agricultural use. By 1860, 318 artesian wells had been dug and windmills were in widespread use. As there was not always a brisk breeze, water towers and tank houses swiftly followed to assure a steady supply of the liquid and to provide gravity flow.

By the 1890s, the county had built water tanks along many of the roads to sprinkle the dusty highway. Water troughs were also constructed to refresh tired horses.

But in the earthquake of 1906, many water towers were toppled. Windmills fell victim to the advent of gasoline and electric pumping systems. Blades were removed as safety steps, so the Gril Scouts often found only a framework remaining.

THE "EVERY time it rains . . . it floods" problems along Hacienda avenue, east of Burrows road, will be a thing of the past when a proposed storm drain project is completed. This Monday, Feb. 27, the Campbell City Council will hear a report on the San Tomas target area by Coordinator Thom McCue. A total of $144,000 in federal Housing and Community Development (HCD) funds will be spent in the next year on the area outlined above. Paving repairs, street lights and sewer improvements are some of the projects possible with HCD funds. In addition, San Tomas area homeowners will be eligible for part of the $230,000 unallocated for housing rehabilitation. Under this program owners can receive low or no interest loans to make repairs and certain types of improvements on their property. Aside from the storm drain project, which was earlier identified as a prime problem in that area, other work will be done after neighborhood meetings are held and a survey conducted in that area to find out what residents want. For more information about the housing and public works program contact McCue at 378-8141 weekdays.

THIRD LOCAL BANK ROBBERY

Crocker Bank at the Pruneyard was robbed of $718 on Feb. 14 by a suspect described as good looking, clean cut and well dressed. His physical characteristics, height, weight, etc., matches that of the man who earlier robbed the nearby Bank of America branch office and Westlands Bank.

According to reports, the soft spoken man handed the teller a demand note and made his escape. That Tuesday was the first day back on the job for the teller who had been on sick leave for six weeks.

MOTORCYCLIST INJURED

A 19-year-old Campbell man suffered internal injuries last Wednesday morning when he struck a car making a left turn in front of him on Campbell avenue at Jeffers.

Greg Peers was in satisfactory condition at Good Samaritan Hospital Tuesday suffering from three broken ribs and other injuries.

According to witnesses, the motorcyclist laid down his bike in the street to avoid a collision and he and the bike slid into the rear of the car.

Paramedics treated Peers at the scene.

Police are seeking a complaint against the driver, a 29 year-old Campbell woman, for failure to yield to oncoming traffic.

LOOP STREET ACCIDENT

Police are seeking a complaint against a 49 year old Campbell woman who was injured when she apparently drove across the Third street intersection with Civic Center drive into the path of oncoming traffic.

Her car was struck by two cars and one of those cars then collided with a fourth vehicle waiting to cross Third street.

The driver, who had no recollection of the accident, was taken to Los Gatos Community Hospital for treatment.

HOME BURGLARIZED

A Dot avenue home was broken into last week and stereo equipment stolen.

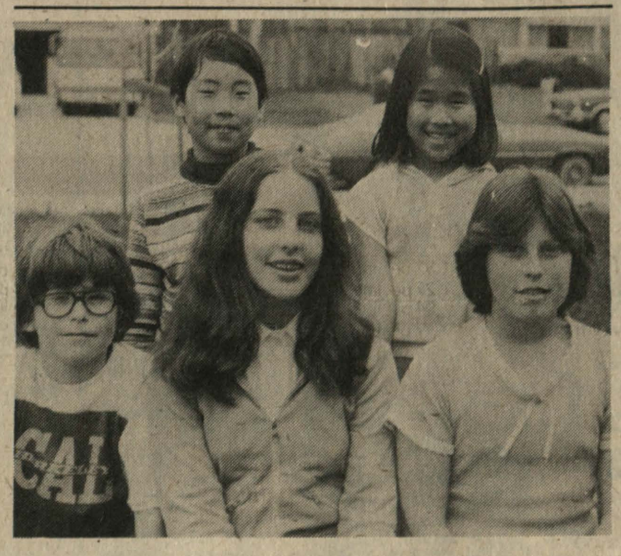
Value of the theft was set at $1,615.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED

A 51-year old San Jose man was taken to Los Gatos Community Hospital with serious injuries last week after he was struck on Hacienda avenue, 50 feet east of the Capri drive intersection.

According to witnesses, the man was struck about 10 p.m. that night as he stood in the roadway. He was wearing dark clothing.

The driver, an 18-year old Santa Clara youth, was not cited.



CAPRI School students of the Month for January were, from left, Matt Cavender, Michael Watari, Marisa Darpino, Darlene Nishijima and Kim Hughes.
